Brief Course Overview

- Focused Improvement activities is used to accomplish maximum efficiency of individual facilities, equipment and manufacturing processes as well entire plants by thoroughly eliminating losses and improving performance. According to Suzuki, Focused Improvement includes all activities that maximizes the overall equipment effectiveness of equipment processes and plants through uncom-promising eliminating of improvement losses and the improvement of performance.
- Focused improvement is an arena of self-accomplishment for engineers and technical staff. These people upgrade their analytical skills in problem solving in order to improve the equipment and find abnormality which may take precautionary measures to eliminate them and improve OEE and eliminate all equipment losses.
